"Stunt Show."

The Vaudeville entertainment given Friday evening by the students of Lyndon Institute was a very unique one and most successful in every way. Programs of the "stunts" were displayed on 'the walls, and lettered slides on the sides of the stage were used as in a theatre. Miss Croff presided at the piano and Miss Christabel Brown was an efficient that her son, Dr. Richard Wilder, was stage manager. The first "stunt" was an opening chorus by young men and maidens in gay summer attire. A recitation "Seein' things at night," was well hospital at Whitefield with a broken rendered by Mildred Stockwell in the disguise of a small boy about two feet high. The "Witch dance" was distinctly suggestive of Walpurgis-night revels, a sea shell dance was a symphony in pink, and the "Inside out dance" was most bewildering, making one wonder if the dancers were going forward or backward. The "Human Melodeon" manipulated by Rose MacLaughlin played popular airs in a ghoulish manner.
